Computer Skills

Although I have no formal training on computers, I have used them virtually all my life and am relatively competent in their use. I am skilled in the following and am always willing to learn additional skills should it be required.

Microsoft Windows and its main office related programs, most programs I am able to get to grips with relatively quickly. Linux, specifically the Ubuntu distribution. Website programming and design in XHTML, PHP, CSS, JavaScript. MySQL database design and use. I am able to build computer's from scratch as well as set up basic networks and diagnose problems with most systems.

Employment History and Experience

H Samuel, 57 High Street, Rhyl. 2001 – Present day.
Sales Associate/Repair Clarke.

Main Responsibilities

Serving Customers and using product knowledge to make the sales. EPOS use when selling and also when performing back office work such as repair intake and stock management. Key holder for the shop and safe.

Hobbies & Interests

I enjoy many aspects of music including listening to and collecting records, playing music and going to see live bands on regular occasions. I can play the guitar and have on occasion been a DJ at small local events. My music taste is highly varied and I find more obscure and unusual music a lot more interesting than commercial music. I also have an interest in electronics and have been interested in computers for a long time. This has led me to be especially interested in the internet and its possibilities in the future and have found databases especially intriguing. I program, run and write for a music review website which has been going for a good few years now and has a steadily increasing readership.

Personal Statement

I am a highly motivated and energetic person who is always willing to learn new skills and work with others to expand my knowledge. I am looking for a position which will allow me to gain experience and knowledge from others that will help to progress and allow me to gain a stable career for the future whilst doing a job which I enjoy and for which I can expand on. I wish to be able to change things for people in small ways, to make my career rewarding and enjoyable.
